

THE GRAND INTERNATIONAL MATCH AT ROCHESTER.

CANADA VS. UNITED STATES—THE YANKEE BOYS VICTORIOUS.

THE YOUNG CANADIAN OF WOODSTOCK, C. W. VS. ATLANTIC CLUB OF BROOKLYN, N. Y.

THE ATLANTICS THE VICTORS BY A SCORE OF 75 TO 11.

In our issue of the 10th of Sept., we gave a brief resume of the career of the Young Canadian Club of Woodstock, C. W., a town located on the great Canada Railway between London and Paris, about seventy-five miles from Niagara Falls, and we then referred to the fact that the young Canadians were desirous of receiving some practical instructions in the game at the hands of the noted Atlantic Club, the now recognised champion club of the United States for 1864. In order to achieve this object, a letter was sent to us to be forwarded to the Atlantic Club, which contained a friendly challenge to the Atlantics to meet them at Rochester during the time of the State Fair at that city, and there to play a game of ball for the championship of the American Continent. This letter duly reached its destination, and the challenge was promptly accepted, much to the credit of the Atlantic Club, and the game took place on the Jones Square ball grounds, Rochester, on Thursday, Sept. 22d, 1864, the result being the signal success of the Atlantic Club by a score of 75 to 11 in a full game of three hours duration. Before we proceed to give the particulars of this match we will briefly refer to the successes obtained by the two contesting clubs in the game. The Young Canadian Club was first organized in 1861, since which time up to the 22d of Sept., they had not sustained a single defeat, and their success may be estimated by the aggregate scores of the last seven games they have played, the same being 204 against 81. They defeated the oldest club in Canada—the Maple Leaf of Hamilton in three games, the last one by a score of 30 to 2, and they won a ball from the Detroit club by a score of 29 to 6, and the last game they played was won by a score of 37 to 12. It could thus be seen that their pretensions to the title of Champions of Canada were

BASEBALL ON THE BIG LEAGUES. THE CAREER OF THE ATLANTIC CLUB, OF Brooklyn, is well known to every reader of the CLIPPER, and therefore all that need be said about them is that they have thus far won every game they have played. The aggregate scores of the games they had played up to the 24th Sept., including their games with the Canadians and Rochester Club, were 802 to 220. The largest score they obtained in a match was in that with the Canadians; the Gotham Club, of New York, giving them the severest rub of the season, and the Empires making a tie game with them in one match. They defeated one club—the Resolutes—by a score of 18 to 1; the best game the club ever have played being their match with the Nassau, in which they scored 42 to 7. They defeated the Philadelphia club—four games being played—by a total of 230 to 47, and in the two games they have played on their last trip, they won by totals of 129 to 16. They have this season won nineteen games and lost none, it being the most brilliant season in the annals of the club. Shortly after noon on Thursday crowds of people began to collect at Jones' Square, and by the time the players took their positions to commence the game, every available space for viewing the proceedings was occupied. Quite a bevy of ladies were present among the spectators, the assemblage altogether embracing over four thousand. The Atlantics were the first to go to the bat, their three first strikers scoring runs, Crane being well put out at home base by Pascal, in trying to secure his run, Sprague and Sid. Smith being second and third out from well taken fly balls by Douglass and Medgely in the outer field, Galvin and Pratt previously securing their runs, the Atlantics getting five for their share of the inning's play. The Canadians then went to the bat for the first time, Pascal and McWhinne being well put out at first base by Sprague and J. Wilson on a tip bound, Midgely being left on the base. The Atlantics then began their second innings, and having got the range of Clyde's pitching, the way they went in to astonish both natives and foreigners by their batting was a caution to ye country clubs. P. O'Brien began it, and twelve runs had been scored before the first man had been put out, Chapman being the victim of Douglass, from a fly catch. Crane followed Chapman, being put out at first base, Crane previously placing a home run to his credit on the score. Before the third hand was put out nine more runs were added to the score, Sprague being the last man out, he being captured by J. Wilson at second base. P. O'Brien, Pearce and Smith each scored three runs in this innings. As an offset to this, the Canadians were permitted to make their first run, Douglass being the lucky man, the totals at the close of the second innings being in favor of the Atlantics by a score of twenty-six to one. This result of course deprived the contest of all further interest as far as the victory was concerned, for it was plainly apparent that the Canadians had not a ghost of a chance. It is worthy of remark that this heavy score against them did not lead them to relax their efforts at all; on the contrary, it acted as a spur to their movements, and in the next two innings they made the Atlantics draw blanks, while they themselves added two runs to their score. In the fourth and fifth innings, however, the compliment was handsomely returned; the Atlantics, in the interim, adding fourteen to their score, the total at the close of the sixth innings being forty to three. In the seventh innings the Canadians had a little the best of it, scoring four runs to the Atlantics three, but in the last two innings the champions made two more brilliant dashes in batting, adding no less than thirty-two runs to their already large score, while the Canadians drew a blank and scored four, the grand total being seventy-five to eleven in favor of the Atlantics. The score of the victors would probably have been nearly a hundred, had not the fence bounding the outer field marred the effect of their batting considerably, only one base being allowed for hit, that under ordinary circumstances would have yielded home runs on at least the third base. The fielding of the Atlantics, though such as to elicit the admiration of the spectators, was not by any means up to their highest standard, it being far below the mark of their famous Nassau game. Smith played splendidly in his position, as did Crane in his, and Sprague did his duty at first base, capturing eight players there, Crane securing four. Pratt, too, played finely. Pascal's catching and the fielding of Douglass were the most noticeable features of the Canadian display, but their fielding, as a whole, was very good. J. Wilson put out five at second base, and McWhinne seven at first base. At the close of the match the visitors were hospitably entertained by the Rochester clubs, and quite an enjoyable time was spent during the evening. The following is the score of the match:—
