THE ATLANTIC TOUR.

As detailed in last week's CLIPPER, the Atlantic Club played the first game of their trip at Syracuse on the 13th inst. The same day the party left Syracuse for Niagara Falls, where they were under engagement to play the Young Canadran Club of Woodstock, C. W., on the 15th., at the Tournament grounds. The Falls were reached on Sunday morning, and during the day the club were the recipients of many attentions at the hands of Mr. O. P. Moore, the President of the Niagara Falls Club, and his associates. They were quartered at the international Hotel the proprietor of which, Mr. Fulton, had offered a special prize of a silver ice pitcher, salver and two gold-lined gobiets, to be contended for in the grand international match. On Sunday afternoon the entire party were conveyed in carriages to the Canadian side of the Falls, where they had their pictures taken and were otherwise lionized. Goat Island, the Cave of the Winds and the other attractive points on the American side were also visited.

Monday morning, 15th, the boys were stirring early, some taking another look at the Falls, and others strolling round the village, making purchases. About 11 o'clock, the Young Canadian nine arrived at the International, accompanied by a large delegation of friends, and as the Canucks, who were to play with delegation of friends, and as the Canucks, who were to play with the Atlantics, strolled about the hotel and became acquainted with the Americans they attracted considerable attention. They were all good sized, well made men, but they didn't have the appearance of ball players—at least, such as one meets in the States, and particularly in the metropolis. An early dinner had been ordered, and after putting on their ball suits, the players were taken to the Tournament grounds in omnibuses. Arrived at their destination, they were greeted with cheers by an assemblage of 2,900 or 3,000 spectures, several hundred of whom were ladies. After a short delay in getting the crowdback the game commenced. The Atlantics were first to the bat, and Pearce led off with a beauty to centre field. Hit and come and Pearce led off with a beauty to centre field. Hit and come again was the order till Crane faced the music. Fred gave Edwards a chance on an easy fly citch, and retired. Mills made his base on a safe hit, and came home on Ferguson's stroke, who scored a clean home run. Pratt scored next, when Zettlein and Pearse sleed the invited. lein and Pearce closed the innings, the former going out on a lein and Pearce closed the innings, the former going out on a foul bound by Pascoe, and Dick being put out at second, after making his first by attempting to steal a base. The first two batsmen on the Canadian side hit directly to short, but Pearce was slow in handling the ball, and they both held their bives and finally scored. Clyde popped up an easy one for Smith, which that worthy held. Hearn was disposed of on a foul bound, and Atkinson struck out. Totals, 7 to 2. On the second innings the Atlantics added eight to their score, Smith and Pratt making home runs. This left the score 15 to 2 and the Atmaking home runs. This left the score 15 to 2, and the Atlantics began to think they had a soft thing; but the Canadians handled the willow to some purpose for their share of the innings, and made 11, Young, Jackson and Pascoe making double figures, and the latter getting a clean home run. This was quite a change in affairs, and as it left the score 15 to 13, with the Atlantics only two ahead, they found they had some work before them. By the fine fielding of Sweetman and Hearn the Atlantics were zetired for three runs in the third innings. This left the Atlan-tics only five ahead, with an innings for the Canadians. Zettlein was sent in to pitch, and in consequence of this judicious change, Clyde and Hearn were the only ones who made runs, Mills putting out Atkinson on a foul bound, and Smith and Start getting and of Pascoe and Jackson. In the next two innings the Atlantics added twelve to their score, while they only allowed their opponents to get two. This left the totals 30 to 17 at the end of the fifth innings. The Atlantics had made six in the next innings and the Canadians were at the bat, when rain put a stop to further proceedings and the game was called. The following is the score, including left on bases and fly catches:—
