Junior Base Ball Match.

INGERSOLL VS. WOODSTOCK.

The 11 37 a. m. train from the east, on Friday last, brought from Woodstock, for the third time this season, the "Atlantic" club of that town to engage in a match with the "Always Ready," of Ingersoll—the champion juniors of Canada—for the championship and silver goblet. On the two previous occasions games could not be played, owing to rain on the first, and the absence of several of the Ingersoll players on the second, but the third time found three full nines on the ground at the time appointed. We cannot say anything as to the strength of the Woodstock club, but should think, after their many defeats, that they would have brought the best nine they could have raised. Three first-class players were lacking from the Ingersoll nine, and their places had to be filled by inferior players, who, however, did better than was expected, for they were perfectly green as regards match playing, neither of them having ever before played in such a game. The Ingersoll boys have had several easy victories over the "Atlantics," but they confess that when Clarke, Chadwick and O'Connor were missing this time, they were more than a little afraid that the cup and their reputation were to leave them. They were really more afraid, when, at the end of the "Atlantic's" first innings they had 14 good runs scored, and themselves only 5. This was very poor encouragement for the champions, but they felt somewhat easier when the second innings was ended and they were only 4 behind. They soon got "down in the mouth" again, for the "Atlantics" had gained 6 more in the third, and at the end of the fourth they had lost still more, and were now 15 behind. At this time they seemed to give up all hope, but made up their minds to
